Synopsis

In The Fall is a haunting and atmospheric literary fiction novel by Jeffrey Lent that tells the story of a young couple who move to a remote cabin in the woods in the fall. The couple, John and Sarah, are looking for a new start, but they soon find themselves haunted by the cabin's dark past.

The cabin was once owned by a family who was murdered by their son, and the spirits of the family still linger in the house. John and Sarah begin to experience strange and disturbing events, and they soon realize that they are not alone in the cabin.

Review

In The Fall is a masterfully written novel that will keep you on the edge of your seat from beginning to end. Lent's writing is lyrical and atmospheric, and he creates a sense of dread and suspense that is palpable.

The characters in In The Fall are complex and well-developed, and you will find yourself rooting for them as they try to survive the horrors that are happening to them. John and Sarah are a relatable couple, and you will feel their pain and fear as they try to figure out what is happening to them.

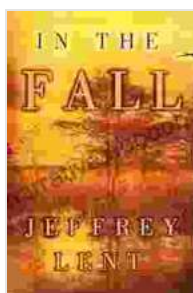

The setting of In The Fall is just as important as the characters, and Lent does a masterful job of creating a sense of place. The cabin in the woods is a character in its own right, and it is as haunted as the family who once lived there.

In The Fall is a must-read for fans of literary fiction, mystery, and suspense. It is a haunting and atmospheric masterpiece that will stay with you long after you finish reading it.
